

Corey James Asher

Montreal, Quebec

Corey James Asher has been with the CRA since 2008. He started his career at the call centre and also worked on collections. He is now an auditor on a team specializing in the underground economy at the Montreal TSO.

Over the years, he has provided a number of technical and non-technical training courses to new and existing employees in both official languages. He is dynamic and smiling, and tries to make training interesting for learners whatever the topic.

He is a gay and cisgender man, and has always been "out" at work. He is very proud to be a trainer and ambassador of Positive Space. He is the LGBTQ2 community representative on the local employment equity and diversity committee for the Montreal TSO and the Quebec regional office. He is also involved in the CRA's LGBTQ2+ network. His involvement in diversity initiatives at the CRA has been very positive and he feels very fortunate to be able to deliver LGBTQ2 awareness training on behalf of the federal government.
